Mr. Billings is shortly to appear in the title rôle of a screen version of the life of Lincoln.

(International)

LIGHT-NING-STRUCK BABY

Little George Sweet of Dallas, Ga., who, while being brought home by his parents in a storm, was struck by lightning that destroyed one foot and burned off the toes on the other. His parents were killed by the same bolt. He is in the arms of Dr. Eugene B. Elder, Superintendent of the hospital to which he was taken. Fifty thousand dollars in money and $50,000 worth of love are required of any one who wishes to adopt the baby, now 15 months old.

(Times Wide World Photos.)

"KING OF THE HOBOES" NOW TRAVELING BY MOTOR

"Hoboing isn't what it used to be," said Jeff Davis (pipe in hand) when he arrived recently in Los Angeles on his sixth world tour. Jeff told reporters that "a hobo will work, a tramp won't, and a bum couldn't work if he wanted to." At the close of the present tour he will return to his home in Cincinnati, where his wife and two children reside.

(Times Wide World Photos.)

ON THE RUNGS OF THE CHAMPIONSHIP LADDER?
Girls' basketball team of Brooklyn, who claim the United States amateur title by virtue of their record, having won twenty-seven consecutive games since 1922 against the strongest girls' teams in the country. "WIVES OF THE FISHERMEN"
Painting by E. Adan depicting an all too frequent experience in the lives of the toilers of the sea. The locale is a little fishing village off the French coast. The lurid cloud banks on the horizon tell that a storm is brewing. The wives of the fishermen, in frenzied anxiety for the safety of their men, are rushing to a point of vantage from which they peer into the distance, hoping to descry the little boats of their husbands scudding toward home and safety. On the highest point stands a crucifix that serves as a landmark for the boats in the gloom and mark of the gathering tempest. A possible tragedy impends and the scene is tense with dread and apprehension.

FIFTH AVENUE

Concerning a Church and a Club

WITH more than ordinary affection most of the works which have been written on Fifth Avenue speak of two institutions which are located near but not on Fifth Avenue, as if they were Fifth Avenue institutions. One of these is a church, loved by a great number of people in all parts of the world, the Little Church Around the Corner, on Twenty-ninth Street, and the other institution is the Century Club at 7 West Forty-third Street.

The Little Church Around the Corner has endeared itself to thousands because of its friendliness. The Church gained a reputation for readiness to extend a helpful hand without prejudice toward station in life, when Joseph Jefferson, the actor, knocked at its door one day in 1870 and said that an actor friend had died and that he desired that the actor be buried from the church.

It so happened that Jefferson had been refused by the pastor of a neighboring church because of the actor's profession, who referred him to the Church of the Transfiguration, saying: "There is a little church around the corner where they do such things."

This incident gained for the Church of the Transfiguration, which soon became known as the Little Church Around the Corner, the friendship of the theatrical profession. With it as a nucleus, the number of friends has grown into many thousands. Very few are the visitors to Fifth Avenue who do not go out of their way to see the Little Church.

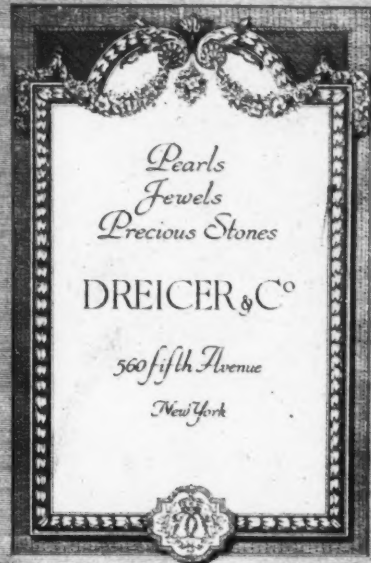

Less frequently visited by the Fifth Avenue sightseer is the other institution which is not located on Fifth Avenue, although usually thought of as a Fifth Avenue institution, the Century Club. It ranks high among clubs because of the great men whose names have been on its membership list. They have been men of high literary attainment and in many instances have possessed qualities which have won recognition in other lines of endeavor.

The first president of the club, Gulian C. Verplanck, was a noted critic and essayist. As a Shakespearean scholar he held a high place in his day.

Another club president, George Bancroft, wrote an ambitious history of the United States and held many positions of trust and responsibility. He was Secretary of the Navy, under President Polk, and Minister to Great Britain from 1846 to 1849 and later Minister to Prussia. During his term of office as Secretary of the Navy the Naval Academy at Annapolis was established.

William Cullen Bryant, poet and publisher, was president of the club from 1868 to his death in 1878.

Many other literary names are connected with the story of the Century Club, among which that of Thackeray is prominent. He was a frequent visitor there during his lecture tours in America.

Hundreds of words you use are almost the same in French, Spanish and German

No wonder Americans find it so easy to talk and read foreign languages by the amazing new Pelman system!

Everybody wants to be able to talk and read at least one foreign language—either for traveling abroad, or for business reasons. A revolutionary discovery now enables Americans to master French, Spanish or German at sight! Get the FREE BOOK that gives you the most astonishing information ever published about learning languages in the only natural way in your own home.

If somebody handed you a foreign newspaper and told you to read it at sight, you would probably say:

"Impossible! Why, I don't know a word of any language but English!"

Yet the amazing fact is that you do actually know hundreds of words of French, Spanish, and German—without realizing it. Hundreds, yes thousands of words are almost identical in English and in the three principal foreign languages. Over 50 of them, printed in the panel above, were taken from a single American newspaper page.

What does this mean? Simply that you already have a start toward learning any language you choose, by the easiest, most efficient method ever devised.

This is the Pelman Method of Language Instruction—a wonderfully simple way of teaching that has been enthusiastically received in England, and has just been brought to America. You learn in the simplest, most natural way imaginable—the way a child learns to speak his native tongue—without bothering about rules of grammar at all in the beginning.

First You Learn to Read the Language at Sight

gle word of explanation in English. But you soon realize that no English is necessary. You find that you already know enough French words to start—words that are almost the same in English—and that you can easily discover the meaning of the unfamiliar French words by the way they "fit in" with the ones you recognize at sight. Your interest is seized and held at once with all the fascination of a game.

In the places where it is necessary, you get the meaning of new words from little pictures of the things the words stand for—but the principle of using words you already know to teach you whole new sentences works so well that you literally read the course from beginning to end in French, and at sight.

And You Begin to Speak Before You Realize It

After only eight to twelve weeks you will be able to read books and newspapers in the language you have chosen—and, almost before you realize it, you will find yourself able to speak that language more fluently than students who have studied it for years in the toilsome "grammar-first" way.

Mr. M. Dawson-Smith, an English student of the Pelman system, writes:

"A short time ago a Spanish lady was staying in the neighborhood. I practised my Spanish on her, and she congratulated me both on my accent and fluency, and was amazed to hear that I had learnt it all from correspondence. She has lent me several Spanish books which I can read with the greatest ease."

And the remarkable results gained by hundreds of others who have taken the Pelman language courses were not attained by a toilsome struggle with rules of grammar, or by laboriously memorizing long "vocabularies" of words.

Every lesson keeps you interested and fascinated, eager for the next. You pick up the points of grammar that you need automatically—almost unconsciously. It is only after you can already read and speak readily that the subject of grammar is touched at all—but correct pronunciation and accent are taught from the first lesson—and a remarkable new invention has made this part of your progress astonishingly easy.

Remarkable Book Free

What do you know about the remarkable opportunities that have been opened up since the war to those who know one or more of the great foreign commercial languages? The amazing free book that you can have for the asking tells you all about them. It shows you what a real business asset it is to have another language at your command. The man or woman who knows two or more languages is needed in business more than ever before.

You have had here only a glimpse, a mere hint, of the fascinating and enjoyable way you can now learn any foreign language through the amazing Pelman method. The big, free book gives you a convincing demonstration of the method in operation—actually teaches you to read at sight a page of the language you select to learn.

Whether you have the desire to learn another language or not, you will be fascinated by the interesting facts about languages that this book gives you.

The coupon below will bring you full information about the Pelman system of language instruction. Sending for it costs you nothing and obligates you to nothing. Mail the coupon today.
